The Department of Anthropology
Presents:

Jack Kugelmass
Professor of Anthropology; Melton Legislative Professor; and Director of the Center for Jewish Studies at the University of Florida

Friday, January 27
2:30 pm
27 Macbride Hall

A Traveler at Home: A Talk on Counternarrative and Memory within Inter- and Post-War Poland

Before his death in 1964, Hayyim Shoshkes had traveled the globe more than three times. He was a polyglot, had a Ph.D. in applied economics and emerged as a well-known writer through a regular column on far-flung locations. He would later turn his attention to the globe more generally, but the early pieces on interwar remote locations within his homeland, Poland, give us a sense of his vision, politics and the purpose of domestic travel writing within a state that had long been divided among three warring empires.

Individuals with disabilities are encouraged to attend all University of Iowa sponsored events. If you are a person with a disability who requires a reasonable accommodation in order to participate in this program, please contact the Anthropology office in advance at 319-335-0522.