

Leopold Center for Sustainable Agriculture Competitive Grants Overview and Q & A

Director
Mark Rasmussen

Mark Rasmussen, director of the Leopold Center for Sustainable Agriculture based in Ames, Iowa, will provide a brief overview of the center and its competitive grants program. The Leopold Center supports projects in areas that enhance sustainability for all Iowa agriculture. The Competitive Grants Program is open to all Iowa educational and non-profit organizations. Each year, the Center selects new research and demonstration projects to fund. Request For Pre-proposals (RFP) is issued in June of each year for funding in the next calendar year. Grants are awarded in each of the four research initiatives (Ecology, Marketing and Food Systems, Policy, and Cross-cutting). A question and answer session will follow.
