Students must submit this completed form to the Global Health Studies Program in 21 Schaeffer Hall before receiving permission to enroll in GHS:3700 Development in a Global Context II.

Under the guidance of a UI faculty mentor students contextualize their internship experience by researching and writing a 12 – 15 page research paper in which they analyze international development, including both challenges and solutions.

The research paper should explore the academic background and significance of the student’s internship project. The paper will develop a public health theme, theoretical position or policy analysis and must be referenced and footnoted. Though the student may draw on her/his internship notes, recordings and videos, importantly no personally identifiable information (names, ages, etc.) of clients/patients should be incorporated into the paper.
