ACADEMIC INFORMATION

1. Last day to drop Fall 2015 semester-length courses with a “W” and a fee is Monday, November 2, 2015. A drop slip signed by instructor and academic advisor must be submitted to 17 CH before the deadline.

2. Early Registration for Spring 2016 enrollment is November 9 – 20, 2015

3. Make an appointment with Karmen Berger to be cleared to register. Use the online scheduler (on the IS website) or call the International Studies Program at 319-384-1328.

4. BE AWARE: if you drop a course late in the semester it might not be possible to add another course at that time, so plan ahead (i.e. contact Karmen earlier rather than later to discuss options). Full-time student enrollment is 12 s.h. or more. Students can still add off-cycle courses (i.e. courses that are not semester length) on ISIS if they are open, and haven’t started yet. Look for off-cycle courses in the following departments on ISIS: WRIT, CCP, HPAS, LLS.

NEW COURSE APPROVED FOR IS FOUNDATION
HIST:2122 / IS:2122 World History: Feudalism to Nuclear Age
Our journey into the modern era begins with a survey of the wide diversity of human societies as they had developed up to the era of global connections and European conquest, starting in the fifteenth century, and an overview of what the world looked like and how international connections were organized in the sixteenth century. We shall endeavor to understand how non-European societies were affected by their encounters with Europe, including how colonization was resisted and how the later spread of capitalism and industrialization re-shaped the fabric of vastly different societies. Our journey concludes with an examination of the first and second world wars, looking at their impacts across the globe. A predominant theme will be how imperialism drew nearly all of the world's diverse peoples into its orbit, culminating in the vast destruction of the Second World War, which in turn undid both the European and the Japanese imperial projects. Grading is based upon participation, a presentation and essay on a topic outside Europe and/or North America, a mid-term and a final exam.

School of Urban & Regional Planning

Fall Open House

Are you interested in sustainability? Do you want to be a part of your community or want a career where you can make a difference? If so, consider a master’s degree in Urban and Regional Planning!

The School of Urban and Regional Planning invites you to our Open House:

October 23, 2015 | 3:30-6:00 pm | Senate Chamber, Old Capitol Museum

The Open House is an ideal time to learn what planners do, what the master’s degree program offers, and learn about career opportunities in urban and regional planning. Planners are concerned with issues such as affordable housing shortages, urban sprawl, neighborhood revitalization and traffic congestion. Areas of specialization include economic development, land use and environmental planning, housing and community development, geographic information systems (GIS), and transportation.

Hear from professors, alumni and students about career opportunities and planning at the University of Iowa. Enjoy pizza and refreshments and discover how you can help people move, work, and live better.

Maize y Mas and More - Exhibit at CSPS in Cedar Rapids
The works in Maize range from paintings, sculpture and installation, to music videos and a remote-controlled cornbot. The artists of Maize explore the unique heritage of maize and corn in the Americas and illustrate the crop’s journey from pre-Columbian times to today. Once a sacred staple associated with a mother/virgin figure, corn is today a genetically engineered product that many consider monstrous. Painting, sculpture, mixed-media work, video and performance express conceptions and interpretations of food and corn through themes of colonial history, personal identity, ethnicity, family, community and even divinity.

From pre-Columbian times to today, corn is a dominant feature of social, cultural, political, economic and food systems. Aztecs, Mayans and Mesoamerica in general revered the crop. Gods were created in homage to corn, and many indigenous and pre-Columbian cultures believe that human beings were made of corn. Today, 40% of U.S. corn is genetically engineered, a far cry from its pre-Columbian origins. Still, corn, one of the first domesticated foods, has a history full of ritual, expectation and myth.

The artists in this exhibition pay attention to our complex historical and contemporary relationship to corn, illustrate the role it plays in our current food system, and explore the idiosyncratic role of corn in Latin American culture. This national exhibit will be held in CSPS Hall in Cedar Rapids, IA (1103 3rd St) from now until January.

Art Exhibit on Arranged Marriage

Public Space One will be hosting an exhibit entitled ‘arranged marriage’ by Gyan Shrosbree and Surya Gied until Saturday, October 24.

The artists describe their works:

Two works as one entity. The abstract patterns and different materials break into the scenes of figuration and surfaces. The combination of our work creates a surprising and playful conversation driven by a modular collage making approach.

Stanley Undergraduate Awards – Info Session!

The Stanley Undergraduate Award for International Research is given annually to outstanding University of Iowa undergraduates for the pursuit of learning activities in international studies that are not available on the UI campus.

Awards are made to students who have, in close consultation with faculty members, developed well-conceived, small-scale independent research or fieldwork projects on international topics, which require travel abroad. The competition is open to all students; students need not be U.S. citizens to be eligible. More information about the award, eligibility criteria, and upcoming workshops can be found here.

Sessions for the Stanley Undergraduate Awards for International Research will be held on the following dates:

Information Session: Wednesday, October 21 from 5-6:30PM at 1117 UCC (in International Programs)

Informational Workshop: Tuesday, November 10 from 3:30-5PM at 1117 UCC (in International Programs)

Speakeasy for Stanley: Wednesday, November 11 from 7-9PM at Sanctuary Pub (405 S. Gilbert St.), Iowa City

Policy Matters Series

"Policy Matters" is an undergraduate course that focuses on the policy challenges posed by the search for economic security and equality of opportunity. The course traces the historical development of social problems and policy solutions, investigates the ways in which society addresses these issues, and engages students in critical analysis of both the effectiveness of current policies and the universe of policy options. Each topical unit concludes with a public forum, bringing together the campus and local community to discuss major social issues facing us today. Each unit includes a panel discussion that is free and open to the public.

The next panel of the series, Policy Matters: Poverty Police in Practice, will be held on Thursday, October 22 from 6:30-8:00PM in Room 109 English Philosophy Building (EPB). This panel brings together a range of people – advocates, researchers, legislators, and administrators – who play different roles in shaping policies. The goal is to understand these policies, how they are made, and how they work in practice – and to gain a better appreciation of the challenges and opportunities in this policy area.

The lecture draws on a new method of assessing core national power and reveals the weakness of conventional wisdom. Among other things, it shows that South Korea is at the moment one of the top six or seven strongest nations in the world; that the United States has been the strongest nation for much of the last century and ultimately China may over take the U.S. as the strongest nation in the world, but both the degree of the pre-eminence of the U.S. and the emergence of China as a new power are exaggerated.

80% of all people under 50 years of age will have HPV at some point in their lives. One in two current college students have HPV.

According to the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, the human papillomavirus (HPV) is thought to be responsible for more than 90% of anal and cervical cancers, about 70% of vaginal and vulvar cancers, and more than 60% of penile cancers.

“Someone You Love: The HPV Epidemic” is a feature length in-depth documentary on the stories of struggle, tragedy and triumph surrounding this complicated and often misunderstood infection. Women are living with (and dying from) HPV related cancers every single day. These women are real. Real Mothers, Real Daughters, Real Wives, Girlfriends, Friends and Sisters. Anybody who has been sexual with even one partner is at a high risk for catching HPV. This documentary lifts the veil and reveals some of the faces of HPV and sheds light on the risks, myths, problems, politics, misconceptions and hard truths about this widespread epidemic.

TARGET AUDIENCE
Healthcare professionals and the public.

Fullbright Lunch & Learn Seminar

Bring your lunch, and learn from alumni and current grantees about their Fullbright experiences on Thursday, November 5 from 12:30-1:20PM in Room 1117 UCC (in the Old Capitol Mall).

This seminar will feature Oleg Timofeyev, PhD, presenting A Fresh Perspective on the Origins of Russian Guitar: A Discussion & Performance. As an American-educated Moscovite, Timofeyev returned to Moscow and, later, Kiev, as a Fullbright Scholar to teach and conduct pioneering research on the 19th and 20th century Russian seven-string guitar. But it was his time in Ukraine that fundamentally changed his way of looking at the Russian Empire. In his presentation, Timofeyev will share how his perspective changed and perform several compositions for the Russian seven-string guitar that illustrate its ethnically diverse early repertoire.

Apply for MA/MSc in International and World History

Applications for Fall 2016 are now open.

The world is more interconnected than ever. Join leading historians to study how we arrived here. An innovative curriculum includes a two-year sequence of reading and research seminars, interdisciplinary electives, and intensive foreign language training. The program provides the students with new frameworks and tools to understand the transnational forces that have shaped our world: migration, trade, war, technology, epidemic disease, and environmental change. At the heart of the program is the two-year dissertation, an original scholarly work based on empirical research and analysis.

Students spend the first year in New York and the second year in London to receive Master’s degrees from both institutions. Immersed in the vibrant intellectual communities of two of the world’s greatest cities, graduates are prepared for careers in government, journalism, think tanks, NGOs, and academia. The program offers summer research fellowships and financial aid opportunities.

Early application is Friday, January 15, 2016. Final application deadline is Tuesday, March 15, 2016. Visit worldhistory.columbia.edu to learn more.

WFAN Conference:
November 6-7
Register now!

WFAN is pleased to host our 2015 annual conference in partnership with the Quad Cities Food Hub! The conference will be Friday and Saturday, November 6 and 7, at the Radisson Quad City Plaza in Davenport, Iowa, and our theme is: Women Protecting Pollinators, Protecting Food.

Click here to learn more about the conference and to register.

The Quad Cities Food Hub is a bi-state initiative (staffed almost entirely by women) that connects farmers and consumers in Iowa and Illinois, in an effort to augment regional local food production and consumption. It's part of a network of Regional Food System Working Groups in the state of Iowa.

Two outstanding projects are their Shared Use Community Kitchen, and Local Market Store, both located in the QCFH headquarters at the historic Freight House building on the banks of the Mississippi River. The Freight House also contains a farmers' market, a farm-to-table deli and a craft brewery and pub -- all within walking distance of the Radisson. Our urban ag field tour on Friday will make a stop at the Food Hub, and our popular Friday evening farm-to-table tasting event will take place in the community kitchen.

See the draft agenda and learn more about lodging, field tours and intensives, and our keynote speaker at the conference page on our website.
Call for Papers – Human Development Conference

The Ford Family Program in Human Development Studies and Solidarity announces Notre Dame’s 8th annual Human Development Conference.

This year’s conference focuses on the transformative power of new ideas: how development paradigms that emphasize agency, inclusivity, and dignity can redefine success and challenge traditional methods in development. As the new Sustainable Development Goals illustrate, this evolution in development calls upon countries and citizens in both the developing and developed worlds to work together to overcome our shared challenges and ensure our interconnected prosperity.

The Human Development Conference provides a platform for dialogue in which students from across all backgrounds and disciplines who are passionate about development can explore the continuing pursuit of good in an ever-changing world.

We welcome and invite all undergraduates to share their research experiences from a broad spectrum of topics in development, including:

- Agriculture
- Business
- Culture
- Economics
- Education
- Engineering
- Environment
- Foreign Aid
- Gender
- Health
- Human Dignity
- Human Rights
- Infrastructure
- Governance
- Measurement and Evaluation
- Organizational Management
- Migration
- Peace/Conflict
- Poverty
- Public Policy
- Religion
- Sustainability
- Technology

For undergraduates interested in presenting a paper, please submit an abstract of your research project and complete the survey questions by clicking here. Please upload all materials and complete your submission by the deadline of Friday, November 9, 2015. Invitations for participation will be extended by the first week of December. Students who accept invitations to present at the conference will be responsible for securing funding for travel and other related expenses.

More information will be forthcoming on our website and Facebook page at facebook.com/notredamehdc. We hope that you will join us in participating in this conversation on development!

MUCH: Midwest Undergraduate Conference in the Humanities, 2015

Saturday, November 7, 2015    Wartburg College

Wartburg College in Waverly, Iowa will host the 5th Midwest Undergraduate Conference in the Humanities on November 7, 2015. We invite submissions focusing on any area of original research-based scholarship in the humanities, including creative work, from colleges and universities in the Midwest. Presentations may take the form of 10-15 minute papers, readings, displays, and lecture-recitals. We particularly welcome scholarship utilizing interdisciplinary approaches and/or engaging with questions of diversity.

Students will need to ask a faculty member in their field of research to sponsor the paper. The faculty member should be willing to offer guidance as the student develops and refines the project. We would also like to extend an invitation to faculty sponsors to attend the conference and to serve as panel moderators.

Proposals (200 word max) should be submitted along with the submission form to: MUCHconference@gmail.com. This address should be used only for submissions.

Questions can be submitted to Zak Montgomery (zak.montgomery@wartburg.edu)

Deadline for submissions: October 2, 2015    Anticipated Registration Fee: $25

New for spring 2016: TALES OF LOVE AND WAR

Move over, "Game of Thrones" — India's Mahabharata has it all: sex, violence, even enlightenment! This saga of 7 generations of a royal clan battling for domination of their world has kept audiences spellbound for more than 2000 years. This course will introduce you to this sprawling epic using written materials, films, TV serials, and a graphic novel. A feminist retelling from the heroine’s viewpoint will be supplemented by an in-class Skype interview with its author, and a marathon six-hour video version will be screened in a class banquet at semester end. Requirements include short “reaction papers” and a final paper or creative project. For information: philip-lutgendorf@uiowa.edu
