Latin American Studies Certificate
at the University of Iowa

The Latin American Studies Program (LASP) introduces students to Latin American cultures, arts, languages, histories and social practices that have had a worldwide impact for over 500 years, and have become increasingly visible and influential in today’s global culture. It gives students a cultural framework for making sense of the social, political and economic challenges faced by Latin Americans and Latinos in today’s world – including those in the state of Iowa and across the United States. The certificate also provides students with the language and cultural skills needed to undertake business, governmental, or scientific work in Latin America.
