An annual $1000 award will be made

Megan Sloss was a second-year Master of Social Work student at the University of Iowa when she died suddenly on September 18th, 2016. At the time of her death, Megan was completing her advanced practicum at the University of Iowa Hospitals and Clinics. Megan is remembered for her kindness to all individuals, her passion for working with children and those affected by mental illness, and for her strong faith. Megan’s family was one of the most important things to her, and she was always using anecdotes from her small-town community to provide insight into different social work topics. To honor Megan, a scholarship has been created in her name, in order to pass on her legacy to aspiring social workers. This scholarship will be awarded to full-time MSW students. The award will be announced in May of the student’s first year and disbursed in the Fall semester of the student’s second year. Applications are due Friday, April 7, 2017.

Eligibility:
Full-time MSW students. Preference will be given to those who aspire to work in the mental health field, rural mental health, and/or with children. Financial Need will also be considered.
